

The impact we have upon the environment, as individuals and collectively through the organisations which we work for and with, has increasingly become a focus for law makers and citizens alike. With over 60 years combined industry experience amongst our Directorship, Ridgewall uses its knowledge base and depth of experience to provide effective communication solutions to its customers that can also support customers' environmental objectives.

Ridgewall has established procedures to identify and manage its activities which impact on the environment. We have set measurable objectives to reduce the impacts and to prevent pollution wherever practicable. We are committed to complying with applicable environmental legislation and other requirements related to our activities, products and services.

Ridgewall is committed to:

- continual improvement and prevention of pollution;
- comply with all applicable legal and other requirements to which it subscribes and to those which relate to our environmental aspects;
- establishing a programme for setting and achieving our environmental objectives and targets;
- where practical, work with customers, suppliers, contractors to improve their environmental performance;
- communicate our Environmental Policy to all persons working for or on behalf of the organisation; and
- make this policy available to all interested parties and the public on our website and on request.
